WAGE AND HOUR LAWS

MINIMUM WAGE

Florida's current minimum wage is $12.00. FL Minimum Wage

Florida minimum wage laws are based on Florida's constitution. FL Constitution, Art. X, Sec. 24; FL Statute 448.110.

Minimum wage rates until 2026

Every year, on September 30, the minimum wage will increase by $1.00 per hour until, by September 30, 2026, the minimum wage will be $15.00 per hour.

Until 2026, the minimum wage rates will be:

- September 30, 2024 – $13.00
- September 30, 2025 – $14.00
- September 30, 2026 – $15.00

Minimum wage in 2027 and after

Each year beginning in 2027, the Florida Agency for Workforce Innovation is responsible for issuing the next minimum wage by September 30 with the next minimum wage increase taking effect on January 1 of the following year. The Agency for Workforce Innovation will calculate the next minimum wage based on the rate of inflation during the twelve months prior to each September 1 using the consumer price index for urban wage earners and clerical workers, CPI-W, or a successor index as calculated by the United States Department of Labor. FL Constitution, Art. X, Sec. 24; FL Statute 448.110.

Florida and the federal minimum wage

Florida employers must also comply with federal minimum wage laws, which currently sets the federal minimum wage at $7.25. See FLSA: Minimum Wage.

If an employer chooses to pay employees minimum wage, the employer must pay those employees in accordance with the minimum wage law, either federal or state, that results in the employees being paid the higher wage. In most instances in Florida, Florida minimum wage laws will apply as it generally guarantees a higher wage rate for employees than federal law.

OVERTIME

Florida labor laws do not include rules governing the payment of overtime. Instead, federal overtime laws apply. In general, these laws provide the following for covered workers.

First, the employer must provide compensation in the form of extra pay for any time worked after the first 40 hours in any given workweek. This compensation, called overtime, must be made at a specified rate. This rate is equal to or greater than time and one-half their regular pay rate. So, an employee who earns $10 per hour for the first 40 hours in a workweek would get at least $15 per hour for time worked after the 40th hour.

Second, all provisions in federal overtime laws are based on the following definition of a workweek: a regular cycle comprising 168 hours or seven straight 24-hour periods. It does not have to match the calendar week. Instead, it may begin on any day and at any time. An employer can create different workweeks for different employees or groups of employees.

Exempt workers do not receive overtime. Under the FLSA, exempt workers are executives, or those who hold administrative or other professional positions. Additional criteria apply.

See FLSA: Overtime for more information regarding overtime requirements.

TIPPED MINIMUM WAGE

Florida's current minimum wage for tipped employees is $8.98. FL Minimum Wage.

Under Florida minimum wage laws, if employers choose to pay the tipped minimum wage, they must ensure that tipped employees are paid the regular minimum wage rate of $12.00 when the tipped wage rate is combined with tips received. FL Constitution, Art. X, Sec. 24\(c\) Florida has adopted the eligibility criteria from the federal Fair Labor Standards Act to determine which employees qualify to be paid the minimum tipped wage rate. FL Constitution, Art. X, Sec. 24\(c\)

TIP POOLING AND SHARING

Florida minimum wage laws do not prohibit either mandatory or voluntary tip or gratuity pooling. Thus, employers would be permitted to require or allow tipped employees to participate in tip pooling arrangements.

PREVAILING WAGES

Florida does not have a prevailing wage law that governs wage rates on government projects or service contracts.

Under certain circumstances, employers in Florida may be required to pay residents wage rates established by federal prevailing wage rates and rules. The prevailing wage rates may be different from the federal and state's standard minimum wage rates.

Employees may be eligible for prevailing wages if they work on government or government-funded construction projects or perform certain government services. See the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts, McNamara-O'Hara Service Contract Act \(SCA\), and Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act \(PCA\) for more information about prevailing wages.

Meals and Breaks

Florida labor laws require employers to grant a meal period of at least 30 minutes to employees under the age of 18 who work for more than 4 hours continuously. FL Statute 450.081\(4\).

Florida does not have any laws requiring an employer to provide a meal period or breaks to employees 18 years of age or older, thus the federal rule applies. The federal rule does not require an employer to provide either a meal (lunch) period or breaks. However, if an employer chooses to do so, breaks, usually of the type lasting less than 20 minutes, must be paid. Meal or lunch periods (usually 30 minutes or more) do not need to be paid, so long as the employee is free to do as they wish during the meal or lunch period. DOL: Breaks and Meal Periods.

Nursing Mother Breaks

Florida labor laws do not require employers to provide nursing mothers with breaks to express breast milk. However, the federal Fair Labor Standards Act requires certain employees to provide nonexempt nursing mothers for one (1) year following a child's birth with reasonable rest breaks to express milk and private spaces, other than a bathroom, to express breast milk.

Waiting Time

Florida has adopted the regulations set forth pursuant to the federal Fair Labor Standards Act regarding when employers must count employee waiting time as hours worked for purposes of minimum wage and overtime requirements. Show Up and Reporting Time

Florida law does not require employers to pay employees for reporting or showing up to work if no work is performed. An employer is also not required to pay an employee a minimum number of hours if the employer dismisses the employee from work prior to completing their scheduled shift. Employers are only required to pay employees for hours actually worked.

Click here for a list of federal holidays.

Private Employers

Private employers in Florida are not required to close on any of the listed holidays. Additionally, private employers are not required to allow employees to take either paid or unpaid time off on the holidays nor are they required to pay employees any premium wage rates to employees who work on the holidays. Private employers may establish policies or practices granting employees time off on any of the listed holiday or agree to pay premium wage rates to employees who work on those days. Employers who establish such policies or practices may be required to comply with them.

Public Employers

Public employers must observe the following state holidays and must grant employees paid leave:

- New Year's Day (January 1)
- Martin Luther King, Jr. Birthday (January 15)
- Memorial Day (last Monday in May)
- Independence Day (July 4)
- Labor Day (1st Monday in September)
- Veterans Day (November 11)
- Thanksgiving Day (4th Thursday in November)

- Friday after Thanksgiving
- Christmas Day (December 25)

If a paid holiday falls on a Saturday, it is observed on the prior Friday. If a paid holiday falls on a Sunday, it is observed on the following Monday.

Full-time employees are also entitled to one personal holiday each year which is credited on July 1 and must be taken prior to June 30 of the following year. Part-time employees are also entitled to a personal holiday each year which is calculated proportionately to the personal holiday of a full-time employee. The personal holiday is not available to teachers or research faculty who work in the State University System and administrative and professional positions exempt under Florida Statute 110.205. FL Statute 110.117

JURY DUTY LEAVE

An employer may not discharge, penalize, threaten, or otherwise coerce an employee because the employee receives or responds to a summons or serves as a juror. FL Statute 40.271. An employer is not required, however, to pay an employee for responding to a jury summons or for serving on a jury. FL Statute 40.24

SICK LEAVE

In Florida, employers are not required to provide employees with sick leave, either paid or unpaid. If an employer chooses to provide sick leave benefits, it must comply with the terms of its established policy or employment contract.

An employer in Florida may be required to provide an employee unpaid sick leave in accordance with the Family and Medical Leave Act or other federal laws.

VACATION LEAVE

Florida has no laws requiring employers to provide employees with vacation benefits, either paid or unpaid. Florida's Legislature and its courts are silent regarding any obligation an employer may have regarding vacation leave, including whether an employer must pay an employee accrued vacation leave upon separation from employment. Due to the silence of Florida authorities on the matter of vacation leave, it is likely employers are free to establish the vacation leave policy of their choosing. An employer would be required to comply with the terms of a valid employment contract containing vacation leave provisions.

VOTING LEAVE

Florida law does not require an employer to allow employees time off, paid or unpaid, to vote.

Florida law prohibits an employer from firing or threatening to fire any employee for voting or not voting in an election, for a particular candidate, or for a specific ballot measure. An employer that violates this law may be guilty of a third-degree felony. FL Statute 104.081

WAGE PAYMENT LAWS

FREQUENCY OF WAGE PAYMENTS

Florida does not have any laws dictating when or how frequently an employer must pay employees their wages.

MANNER OF WAGE PAYMENTS

An employer may pay employees by:

- cash,
- check, order, draft, note, memorandum, or other acknowledgment of indebtedness that:
 - is redeemable at face value on demand without deduction or fee at some established place of business in Florida
 - shows the name and address of the business in Florida when the value may be redeemed
- payroll debit card
 - the wage amounts available in the payroll debit card account is redeemable at face value on demand without deduction or fee at some established place of business in Florida
 - the payroll debit card shows the name and address of the business in Florida when the value may be redeemed
- direct deposit into an account at a financial institution of the employee's choosing, so long as the employee has consented in writing
- coupons, punch-outs, tickets or other devices in lieu of cash if the legal holder is:
 - liable for the full face value in current United States money on or after the 30th day succeeding the day of issuance
 - liable for payment in current money of the United States
 - subject to suit brought in any court of competent jurisdiction to recovery of any deficiency in the payment.

FL Statute 532

DIRECT DEPOSIT

An employer may pay wages to an employee by direct deposit, so long as the employee has consented to direct deposit in writing and the employee is allowed to select the financial institution with which the payment is deposited. An employer may not discharge, refuse employment to, or take any other adverse employment action against an employee who chooses not to have his or her wages paid by direct deposit. FL Statute 532

PAYROLL CARD

Florida labor laws allow an employer to pay an employee their wages by payroll card if:

- the wage amounts available in the payroll debit card account is redeemable at face value on demand without deduction or fee at some established place of business in Florida
- the payroll debit card shows the name and address of the business in Florida when the value may be redeemed

FL Statute 532

Florida does not have any laws dictating when an employer must pay wages to employees who:

- have been fired or discharged;
- voluntary quit or resign;
- have left work due to a labor dispute or strike; or
- are laid off

WAGES IN DISPUTE

Florida does not have any laws requiring an employer to pay an employee wages conceded to be due when involved in a wage dispute with the employee.

DEDUCTIONS FROM WAGES

Florida does not have any laws regarding what deductions may or may not be taken from an employees paycheck or whether an employee must provide written consent prior to any deduction. The lack of a law prohibiting deductions likely means an employer can withhold or deduct wages from an employees pay check for:

- cash shortages
- breakage, damage, or loss of the employer's property
- dishonored or returned checks
- required uniforms
- required tools
- other items necessary for employment

In accordance with federal law, an employer may not make deductions for any of the above-listed items if it would cause the employee to earn less than federal minimum wage for the period in which the deduction was made. DOL Fact Sheet #16.

UNIFORMS, TOOLS, AND OTHER EQUIPMENT NECESSARY FOR EMPLOYMENT

Florida does not have any laws prohibiting an employer from requiring an employee to purchase a uniform, tools, or other items necessary for employment, except for employers operating a labor pool. Labor pool employers may not charge day laborers for any safety equipment, clothing, accessories, or any other required items. FL Statute 448.24

PRE-HIRE MEDICAL, PHYSICAL, OR DRUG TESTS

Florida does not have any laws prohibiting an employer from requiring an applicant or employee to pay the cost of a medical examination or the cost of furnishing any records required by the employer as a condition of employment.

NOTICE OF WAGE REDUCTION

Florida does not have any laws addressing when or how an employer may reduce an employee's wages or whether an employer must provide employees notice prior to instituting a wage reduction. However, a wage reduction can only be applied to hours worked after the change and cannot be applied to hours already worked.

STATEMENT OF WAGES (PAY STUB)

Florida does not have any laws requiring employers to provide employees at the time of payment any notice of wages paid, wage rates, deductions, or other wage payment information, except for employers operating labor pools. Labor pool employers must provide day laborers a written itemized statement showing in detail each deduction made from the wages. FL Statute 448.24

RECORDKEEPING REQUIREMENTS

Florida does not have any laws requiring an employer to keep any employment-related documents.

Federal law requires every employer covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) to keep certain records for each covered, nonexempt worker, for at least three (3) years. For more information, visit FLSA.

NOTICE REQUIREMENTS

Florida does not have any laws requiring employers to provide employees, whether at hire or at any other time, of notice of wage rates, dates of pay, employment policies, fringe benefits, or other terms and conditions of employment.

SEVERANCE PAY

Florida labor laws do not require employers to provide employees with severance pay. If an employer chooses to provide severance benefits, it must comply with the terms of its established policy or employment contract.

CHILD LABOR LAWS

WHAT IS THE DEFINITION OF A CHILD OR MINOR UNDER FLORIDA CHILD LABOR LAWS?

Florida child labor laws define a child or minor as any person who is 17 years old or younger unless one of the following applies:

FL Statute 450.012\(3\)

FL Statute 450.045\(1\); FL Admin. Code 61L-2.003

Florida child labor laws have provisions specifically directed to 16 and 17-year-olds, including restrictions on what times during a day 16 and 17-year-olds may work, how many hours in a week they may work, and what jobs or occupations they may perform. The restrictions on the employment of 16 and 17-year-olds under Florida's child labor laws are discussed below.

- the minor works for his or her parents; or
- the minor works as a page of the Florida Legislature.

FL Statute 450.081\(5\)

In what occupations are 16- and 17-year-olds prohibited from working?
