

PROPYLENE GLYCOL

Your patch test result indicates that you have a contact allergy to propylene glycol. This contact allergy may cause your skin to react when it is exposed to this substance although it may take several days for the symptoms to appear. Typical symptoms include redness, swelling, itching, and fluid-filled blisters.

Where is propylene glycol found?

Propylene glycol is used as a softening agent, preservative, humectants, and solvent in cosmetics, fragrances, topical medications, soaps and cleansers, hair care products, and deodorants. Propylene glycol is also found in oral treatments as well as many foods. It is also added during the manufacture of many industrial fluids, such as solvents, thinners, antifreeze, other de-icing fluids, desiccants, brake fluids, and polyester resins.

How can you avoid contact with propylene glycol?

Avoid products that list any of the following names in the ingredients:

- Propylene glycol
- 1,2-Dihydroxypropane
- CASRN: 57-55-6
- Methyl ethyl glycol
- 1,2-Propanediol
- 2-Hydroxypropanol
- Isopropylene glycol
