Sat test dates near me

Future SAT test dates are only confirmed less than a year in advance, but we at PrepScholar have done the hard work of looking at past test date patterns to predict future SAT test dates and registration deadlines. For 2020-2021, the official timetable is set in stone. But even though they're more uncertain, we can predict future years like 2022, 2023, and 2024 with decent confidence. These predictions have been updated in January 2021 to reflect the latest possible data. For historical SAT test dates, check out our posts on past SAT test dates from 2019-2020, 2018-19, 2017-18, 2016-17, 2015-16, and 2014 and before. SAT Test Dates and Deadlines 2020-21 The 2020-21 test dates are confirmed and listed by the College Board. Test Date Registration Deadline Late Registration Deadline March 13, 2021 February 13, 2021 March 2, 2021 May 8, 2021 April 9, 2021 April 27, 2021 June 5, 2021 May 7, 2021 May 26, 2021 In addition, know that the College Board may add additional test dates to make up for any SAT administrations that were canceled due to the coronavirus. We will update as soon as there is new information. SAT Test Dates and Deadlines 2021-22 The 2021-22 test dates are not confirmed by the College Board and could still change. All registration deadlines are projected by PrepScholar. Refer to the notes about projection accuracy below. But using historical data, we can project when we believe the SAT will be scheduled. For more information about date accuracy, see our note below. Late Registration Deadline How to Use These SAT Test Date Projections The vast majority of the dates above should be correct. For example, if you're taking the SAT in November 2021 and want to know whether a test date lands on your birthday or not, this calendar will tell you. At most, our projected dates might be off by a week. However, as it is with all projections, there will always be some margin of error. Feel free to plan your SAT schedule using our calendar. Within a year of your planned test date, check the College Board website for official dates. As long as you don't bet your life on it, the above SAT dates and deadlines should give you a clear idea of when future SAT tests are likely to be held. What's Next? SAT testing sites are usually high schools, colleges and universities in several cities throughout the US. Internationally, the exam is also typically administered through schools. When selecting your testing location, make sure that the test center you choose offers the SAT on the date you want to take it, since not all locations administer the exam for every test date. For students who live more than 75 miles from a testing center, it is possible to take the exam closer to home if you meet all requirements. This alternative is not available for every date, and it is not offered at all international locations. Registration DeadlinesThe deadline to register for the SAT can vary, but is generally about one month prior to the exam date. Students who apply late will need to pay a late fee. Late registration closes about two weeks prior to the exam date. Students testing outside of the United States are not permitted to use late registration. Students who miss the late registration deadline might be able to request Waitlist Status. Students registered on the waitlist can show up on test day and take the exam if two conditions are met: all other students are at the site and ready to take the test and the site has sufficient testing materials available. When to Take the SATMost students take the SAT when they are juniors or seniors. It is fairly common to take the test twice, and many students receive a higher score on their second test. By taking the test at the end of your junior year, then again sometime during your senior year (preferably before your school's long winter break), you can maximize your chances for improvement. The SAT Subject Tests can primarily be taken anytime you take the SAT, but generally speaking, students perform better on the tests after mastering the specific course material offered by their school. The College Board recommends taking the World History, Biology E/M, Chemistry and Physics subject tests immediately after finishing the class to achieve a higher score. Studying a language for two years typically yields better results when taking a specific language Subject Test. Preparing for the SATBefore you take the SAT or the Subject Tests, it can be helpful to review key concepts and subjects that you learned in high school for the best chance at success on the exams. Study.com provides a robust offering of mobile-friendly resources that are available to you 24/7 so you can study as much as you want, whenever it is convenient for you! Our courses feature practice quizzes, full-length tests, and video tutorials so you'll be ready for any of the SAT exams you plan to take. SAT PrepTo prepare for the SAT, use our comprehensive course that provides more than 200 lessons covering core SAT subjects. Then go further into detail on each SAT section using our section-specific courses. SAT Prep: Practice & Study Guide SAT Math SAT Reading SAT Writing Study.com also delivers comprehensive courses focused on the material tested in SAT Subject Tests: If you miss the test for any reason, including illness, injury, being denied admission at the test center for lack of ID, or late arrival, your options are listed below. IMPORTANT: Once you break the seal on your test booklet, you cannot later request a test date change, even if you do not complete all your tests. You must register again and pay the full fee for your test option if you want to retake. Request and pay for a test date change Log in to your MyACT account and select "Make Changes to Your Registration" or call ACT Registration at 319.337.1270 by the regular deadline for the new test date. You will be charged the full fee for the new test date in addition to the test date change fee. If you call during the late registration period, you will also be charged a late fee. In either case, your basic fee for the original test date will be refunded. (If you register for a new test date instead of making a test date change, your basic fee for the original test date will not be refunded.) If you decide you do not want to test on another test date, your registration fee and any additional fees (such as late fee or test center change fee) are nonrefundable. If you do not test, no score reports will be sent. Request a refund for optional services If you do not test and do not make a test date change, the following fees for optional services are refundable if you ordered and paid for the services when you registered: Score reports for 5th and 6th college codes Test Information Release ACT writing test To request a refund of these optional services, write "REFUND" on your unused admission ticket and mail it to ACT Registration, email act-reg@act.org with "REFUND" in the subject line, or write a letter including your identifying information and the test date and test option for which you registered. Label your envelope "REFUND." Refunds will be issued about eight weeks after your scheduled test date and will be issued in the form of payment originally received (for example, a credit will be applied to your credit card). Requests for refunds for the 2020-2021 testing year received after August 31, 2021 will not be considered. Send your requests to: ACT, P.O. Box 414, Iowa City, IA 52243-0414, USA Every year, there are fourteen national ACT and SAT test dates offered at various testing sites across the United States. Any high school student can register for and take the ACT or SAT exams on these select Saturday mornings. There are a lot of myths out there about testing so, in addition to the upcoming exam dates listed below, here are my top three tips for students and their families as they plan their ACT or SAT testing journey. Choose your test wisely. Both the ACT and SAT are accepted for admission and scholarships. And, while the two exams test similar concepts, they do so very differently. Rather than attempt to study for both, select the exam that is a better fit for you from the start. Click here to find out whether the ACT or SAT is your better fit. Test on back-to-back test dates. Instead of testing and playing the waiting game which prolongs the torture of the testing season, plan well from the start. By preparing for your chosen exam and then taking that test on two consecutive test dates, you'll increase your odds of improvement and be done with testing faster than your friends. You can plan your dates out with this printable PDF of upcoming ACT and SAT test dates. Never test "cold". Like it or not, the ACT and SAT have an impact on your admission potential as well as your scholarship opportunities. And - spoilers - you don't have to be a 99th percentile student to earn some serious cash for college. But winging it is a big mistake. If you're studying for your chemistry test next Tuesday, you should invest some time in preparing for your college admissions exam. You can get started learning the strategies that will give you an edge on test day right now by downloading my free eBook - the Insider's Guide to the ACT & SAT. You can access more information about upcoming national ACT test dates here and SAT test dates here.Keep in mind that, in addition to the fourteen national ACT and SAT test dates available each year, there are also a handful of in-school test dates offered. These in-school test dates are not listed above as the availability of testing during the week for free at your school is entirely dependent upon the state you live in and school you attend. You'll need to contact your counseling office directly to inquire about the PSAT, ACT, or SAT testing opportunities that may be available to you through your school.
