Savvas brings the standards of a class to homeschool curriculum. This homeschool package includes a student text hardcover, two DVDs of resources for teachers and a postcard with registration instructions for online access to teaching resources, an e-text, video and much more. The student's text is substantial, with 1110 pages. There are 21 "topics" or chronological units, starting from the origins of the civilization and end up with the world today (1980-present). Each argument is divided into brief chapters, which end with several evaluation applications. There are many images, including illustrations, maps, graphics, armwork from that period and more. "Topics" each includes goals, terms to be defined, requests for evaluation of the end of the unit and a reminder to go online to Savvasrealize.com for digital resources. All educational resources are found online at Savvasrealize.com. You will receive a postcard with your bundle that includes an account configuration instructions. (Note: Make sure you select the title of the course itself - World History 2016 - instead of looking for a real school code.) Once logged in, click on the course title and you will see the summary for the course. When you click on a topic, you will see different lessons for that unit, along with some additional tasks such as projects, videos or documents based activities. Here you can access printable tests and revisions.
