MUSIC

For Chris Isaak, it all begins in Nashville

Brian Mansfield USA TODAY

NASHVILLE The first time Chris Isaak came to Nashville, he sang with his brother at an empty Ryman Auditorium.

There, on a stage that had been frequented by the likes of Hank Williams and Johnny Cash, the Isaak brothers sang Stonewall Jackson's Don't Be Angry. "The next day, I got to meet Stonewall Jackson," Isaak says, "and he said, 'I heard you sang my song.'"

That sort of chance encounter continued while Isaak, 59, was in Nashville recording First Comes the Night, out Nov. 13 on Vanguard Records. It's the Wicked Game singer's first album of new songs in six years.

"In the middle of the whole thing, I went to breakfast, and there was Robert Plant," he says. "So I thought, 'This town's rocking, man!'

Isaak decided to record in Nashville at the suggestion of Stevie Nicks. "She said it was a fantastic town and the studios and engineers were great."

On Isaak's previous album, 2011's Beyond the Sun, he covered songs that had come out of Memphis' legendary Sun Studio, where Cash, Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis and others cut classic sides in the '50s. If that album was mid'-50s Presley at Sun, First Comes the Night is later Presley at RCA. Down in Flames, for instance, has backing vocals that recalls All Shook Up. Also, Isaak says, "Don't Break My Heart reminds me of a bad Elvis soundtrack to a bad Elvis movie, Chris Isaak's First Comes the Night arrives Nov. 13.

but in the best way."

But First Comes the Night, recorded with producers Paul Worley and Dave Cobb, is not a "Nashville" album the way Beyond the Sun was a "Memphis" album. "It could have been recorded anywhere, but it was recorded in Nashville because Nashville's the best place to make a record," Isaak says.

Isaak also wound up writing for the new album with local songwriters Natalie Hemby, Gordie Sampson, Caitlyn Smith and James Slater, who have penned country hits for the likes of Miranda Lambert. Carrie Underwood, Little Big Town and Martina McBride.

"With Gordie, I brought him a piece of a song. ... I had a piece that goes 'Kennedy got it in a Lincoln, Caesar got it in the back, somebody told me Hank Williams died in his Cadillac.' Gordie goes, 'Let's work on that one!'

"I like a guy who's willing to take a challenge."

Isaak returned to Nashville

this week to perform the Everly Brothers' Bye Bye Love at the Ryman, in tribute to the late songwriting team of Felice and Boudleaux Bryant as part of Tuesday's Academy of Country Music's ACM Honors concert.

In a few days, he will fly to Australia, where he's a judge on the new season of that country's version of The X Factor.

"We've shot several episodes already, and now I'm going back to do the live stuff," he says. "The people coming out, yeah, there's a lot of goofy ones, but there's some good ones. You find yourself going, 'I'm pulling for this guy; I'm pulling for this girl.'

"I'd be in Nashville working, and late at night I'd think, 'What song could he do that'd be good for him?' I was thinking about songs for people on the show."

From Sam Smith, with love: A new Bond theme

Brian Truitt USA TODAY

The man singing the theme for the new James Bond movie Spec*tre*? Smith – Sam Smith.

The Grammy-winning British crooner confirmed on Twitter Tuesday that his tune Writing's On the Wall will be the latest in a long line of cinematic tracks in 007's history, going back to Shirley Bassey's iconic Goldfinger in 1964. The song will be available to purchase and stream Sept. 25.

"This is one of the highlights of my career. I am honored to finally announce that I will be singing the next Bond theme song," Smith tweeted. "I am so excited to be a part of this iconic British legacy and join an incredible line up of some of my biggest musical inspirations."

NOTICES

Smith co-wrote the song with Jimmy Napes, and it's the first time a British male solo artist has recorded the Bond theme since Tom Jones' Thunderball in 1965.

"Sam and Jimmy have written the most inspirational song for Spectre and with Sam's extraordinary vocal performance, Writing's On the Wall will surely be considered one of the greatest Bond songs of all time," producers Michael G. Wilson and Barbara Broccoli said in a statement.

Smith hinted on social media Monday that he was getting the job, tweeting a close-up picture of a ring with the octopus-like sigil of the nefarious organization S.P.E.C.T.R.E.

He joins the likes of Paul McCartney, Madonna, Carly Simon and Duran Duran who've done Bond songs over the years. More recently Chris Cornell, the duo of Jack White and Alicia for 2012's Skyfall won a Grammy, Keys, and Adele have been tapped for the honor – the latter's theme

Golden Globe and Oscar. Spectre, directed by Sam

Mendes and again featuring Daniel Craig as the English superspy, hits theaters Nov. 6.

Prevent a heart attack before it happens.

Millions of people die each year of heart disease. But, most people don't know they have it until they have a heart attack or stroke. Low-dose CT calcium scoring can identify the early stages of heart disease in patients without symptoms.

> Are you between the ages of 30 and 70 years old and have any of these risk factors for heart disease?

• High cholesterol • Hypertension • Diabetes Family history • Smoking • Obesity • Sedentary lifestyle

> Ask your doctor about CT calcium scoring. Only $75 can save your life.

Call 903-946-5558 to schedule an appointment.
