What are essential oils?

Essential oils are aromatic volatile liquids distilled from shrubs, flowers, trees, roots, bushes, and seeds. Essential oils are very complex: each one may consist of hundreds of different and unique chemical compounds. Moreover, essential oils are highly concentrated and far more potent than dried herbs. The distillation process is what makes essential oils so concentrated. It often requires an entire plant or more to produce a single drop of distilled essential oil. Young Living takes great care in the methods used to extract these oils.

Essential oils are also different from vegetable oils such as olive, grapeseed, coconut, and sunflower oils. Essential oils are not greasy and do not clog the pores like many vegetable oils can. Vegetable oils can become oxidized and rancid over time. Most essential oils, on the other hand, cannot go rancid. However, it is important to understand that, if not distilled properly, pressed and essential oils high in plant waxes such as patchouli, could go rancid over time, particularly if exposed to heat for extended periods of time. This is why Young Living's "Seed to Seal" promise is essential.

Essential oils are substances that definitely deserve the respect of proper education. Users need to be fully versed in the chemistry and safety of the oils. You are encouraged to explore the many resources available to you on the subject of essential oils.

Essential Oil Safety

Essential oils are potent gifts from nature that can often be more powerful than expected. In order to prevent misuse of these precious oils and ensure their maximum benefit, Young Living Founder and CEO D. Gary Young, working with Director of Global Education and Health Sciences Dr. Lindsey Elmore and other product experts on her team, created a helpful safety guide at the website address shown below. Please refer to it to learn the basics of essential oil use, how to handle skin sensitivity, and other valuable information.

A few important tips:

- You should never place essential oils inside the ear.
- You should never place essential oils near or in the eyes.
- Please learn about the proper methods and ratios for diluting essential oils.
- Some essential oils are more "hot" to the skin than others. Learning more about this and other sensitivity issues are important.

- Always read the essential oil labels for further information and usage.
