William BarrWilliam Pelham Barr (born May 23, 1950) is a U.S. attorney and civil servant who has been the 85th U.S. Attorney General under The administration of Donald Trump since February 14, 2019. He was also the 77th Attorney General from 1991 to 1993 under the administration of George H. W. Bush. From 1973 to 1977, Barr was employed by the Central Intelligence Agency during his school years. He then served as clerk to try Malcolm Richard Wilkey. In the 1980s, Barr worked for the law firm Of Shaw, Pittman, Potts - Trowbridge, sandwiching a year's work at the White House of the Ronald Reagan administration dealing with legal policies. Prior to becoming Attorney General in 1991, Barr held many other positions within the Department of Justice, including head of the Office of Legal Counsel (VOC) and deputy attorney general. From 1994 to 2008, Barr did corporate legal work for GTE and its successor company Verizon Communications, making him a multimillionaire. From 2009 to 2018, Barr served on Time Warner's board of directors. Barr is a longtime supporter of the unitary executive theory of almost unfettered presidential authority over the executive branch of the U.S. government. In 1989, Barr, head of the OLC, justified the American invasion of Panama to arrest Manuel Noriega. As assistant attorney general, Barr authorized an FBI operation in 1991 that freed hostages at Talladega Federal Prison. An influential advocate for tougher criminal justice policies, Barr as Attorney General in 1992 wrote the report The Case for More Incarceration, where he argued for an increase in the incarceration rate in the United States. Under Barr's guidance, President George H.W. Bush pardoned six officials involved in the Iran-Contra case in 1992. Barr became attorney general for the second time in 2019. That year, under his leadership, the Department of Justice argued to repeal the Affordable Care Act and reinstate the death penalty for federal crimes. Also in 2019, Barr was detained for criminal contempt in Congress for defying subpoenas Appear in court his department refused to prosecute him. After criticizing the Mueller investigation before taking office, Barr did not recused himself from overseeing the investigation as attorney general. After receiving Mueller's report, he published a four-page letter to Congress, outlining what he said were his main conclusions, and adding his opinion the evidence presented did not establish obstruction of justice by Trump. Special counsel Mueller replied privately that Barr's letter had distorted the report. After the release of a redacted version of the report, fact auditors and media outlets also stated that Barr's letter missed the report. A December 9, 2019 report by the Justice Department's inspector general revealed numerous errors, errors and omissions in the handling of the Russia investigation, but found no evidence of testimony or documentary that political bias against Trump marred the opening of the investigation. Hours after the release of the IG report, Barr publicly announced his disagreement with the report's findings. The next day, Barr said in an interview with NBC News that the Russia investigation was completely baseless and said he believed the FBI investigation may have been conducted in bad faith. faith.
