Introduction

In this question words speaking activity, students play bingo by racing to make questions from question words.

Procedure

Divide the class into groups of four. Give each student a bingo card. Tell the students to use a pencil when writing on their card. Also, give each group a set of topic cards.

Tell the students to shuffle the topic cards and place them face down in a pile on the desk.

Explain that the students are going to play a game of bingo by racing to make questions from the question words on their card.

Demonstrate the game by taking a topic card and asking the students to think of questions relating to the topic using the question words on their bingo card.

Example: hobbies and free time

What is your favourite hobby?
How do you like to spend your free time?
Where do you spend your free time?
Who do you spend your free time with?

Repeat with a new topic card, but this time tell the students that the first student to ask a question wins and can cross off the question word from their card.

Students then play the game in their groups.

Students take it in turns to pick up a topic card and read the topic to the group.

The other group members then race to make a question relating to the topic using one of the question words on their bingo card.

The first student to ask a suitable question to the student holding the card wins.

The student holding the card then answers the question and the other student crosses off the question word from their bingo card. The next student then picks up a topic card and the process is repeated.

The first student to cross off all the question words on their bingo card wins the game and shouts 'bingo'. Several rounds can be played with students erasing the crosses from their bingo cards before a new game begins.
