Have you ever been told, there are a lot of animals there, and big ones at that but you can't get there from here?

That is what I was told when I wanted to hunt the 25,000 acres of antelope in the NE corner of Wyoming antelope Basket. The area has a LOT of private land, so it is basically private land hunting, which on the other side of the coin should make it easy to draw. Sometimes that is the magic to finding an area that is easy to draw is to find a unit with no public land. In some areas, they even split the licenses and designate them for the same unit but some for private and some for public land. Wyoming's Unit 007 Type 1 and for a doe it is A007 Type 6 in the North-East corner of the Cowboy State has a lot to offer if you can get a license for antelope. The Ranch is North of Lodge Pole Creek specified as type 6 but type 7 (season dates are after the buck season ends) is ok as well because it is available for both sides of Lodge Pole Creek. 10/1-15 season dates 600 any antelope. We only book 6 hunters per year on this ranch so openings don't last long, it is not one to drag your feet on.

The ranch doesn't have any whitetail or Mule deer, just plenty of Antelope at a price low enough not to seriously put your child's College in jeopardy.

Anyway, lots of antelope and requiring an antelope point to draw is the formula for big antelope in the trophy book. The other option is if you don't have points you can put in for a "Special Buck" antelope license which is $ 240 on top of the regular $ 272 for a total of $ 512, Buck Antelope non-residents license.

The bucks score between 13 and 16 inches but keep in mind you are the one to select the antelope and pull the trigger, with opportunity 500% and harvest 100% for years, don't be afraid to pass a couple of bucks before you ignite the powder.

The residential antelope population is what you will see here for about the 1st week of the season. Things change dramatically when the Black Hills to the North get their first snow, then you will see a fresh new batch of Black Hills Antelope arrive for your pleasure. Some local bucks will stay while others continue south for the winter.

There is a lot of property here and since they raise special cattle they are very careful about always having multiple water sources for the cattle. This in turn keeps the antelope in this area because there are large areas not owned by this landowner that don't have water year around.

The property in this area is a patchwork of private land owned by different owners. They get a long well but if an outsider comes in they quickly know and are there to greet you in a not so friendly way. This also keeps many hunters avoiding the area allowing the bucks to grow into trophy animals. It is guided 2 on 1 with them knowing all the gate combinations and the hunter in the passenger seat opening the maze of gates as you pass from pasture to pasture. You may think in a day or 2 you will know the area well, but don't fool yourself, you won't. The outfitter/Guides pre-scout the area so your time is best spent selecting the biggest bucks on the ranch.

Shooting like most antelope hunting is about 100 to 500 yards, with most around 200 yards because of the high quality of the bucks.

book but want the service anyway we discounted it down also to $ 25 to promote hunting in the US, for any and every one that is available. Our dollar go farther.

Note:

For your first application for the calendar Year you will be charged $10 for a Conservation Stamp. That stamp is good all year for hunting and Fishing.

Archery compound and crossbow hunters can hunt archery rules during August and if they don't fill their license during August they can use a rifle to fill the same tag in October. They are also required to get an Archery stamp to use the license during August and convert the license to rifle hunting any time between 10/1-15.

Note this unique option in Wyoming: You cannot draw a license and buy a preference point in July for the next year. If you draw a license you will not be able to get a preference point in July for next year. Here is the piece of gold-A Special Buck license can be purchased every year and draw one of the Buck Antelope areas for this area every year.

The season is only the first 2 weeks of October and to get your dates it is first deposit gets first selection for dates. As a rule, we never need to overlap dates, but the ranch is big enough and there is enough antelope that we accommodate everyone.

Those don't accommodate this policy have not though about if the shoe were on the other foot they may not have a place to hunt. Lodging is at the hunter's expense with motels in all the small towns in the area running about $35 per person double occupancy. Of course, for a room for October 1st you will need to make reservations well in advance because it is the same opening day for deer in this area and motels fill up quickly. After the first 3 or 4 days in October the motel availability becomes much better.
