Alerts: Knowing What is Happening As It Happens

Overall Objective

The objective will be to improve and/or update attendees on sources and methods for keeping up-to-date on news, events, etc. from news resources, social media and other types of content by means of alerts, RSS feeds, Web-based software programs, and other tools.

We will cover:

The wide range of monitoring needs such as news, events and conditions (such as disasters threats, storms, political and economic developments, conferences, etc.)

The variety of channels for delivering alerts: email alerts (such as from BBC), alerts provided by search engines (such as Google Alerts), RSS feeds, software for monitoring specific websites and individual websites, etc.

Setting up Alerts on Google for specific topics and for specific topics on individual websites

Using RSS feeds and RSS readers

News feeds from individual sites such as newsletter and blog sites.

Tracking social media (e.g., Twitter, Facebook, etc.) using specialised software for social networking, Google Alerts, and other approaches.

Using specialised website monitoring software (such as Infominder, WebsiteWatcher, etc.)

How to track "trends" using Google Trends, Google Public Alerts, and Recorded Future

Links for all websites covered in this booklet can be found at:

www.onstrat.com/alerts

The above Web page will remain online for your convenience. Feel free to share it with others.

Suggestions for getting the most from this session:

Share with the group your own experiences, sources, etc.

Ask questions

Make note of sites that you may want to make use of.

Make note of sites (and pages on sites) that have relevant RSS feeds and other automatic distribution features.

General Alerts Tools – Google Alerts

www.google.com/alerts

Covers over 50 000 sources

Delivered via email. Can have up to 1000 alerts.

- Can choose "as it happens", daily, or weekly
- Can choose that the alert be for News, Blogs,
- Video, Discussions, Books, Finance or Everything
 Can choose daily, weekly, or "as it happens"
- Can choose daily, weekly, or as it haj
- Can specify language
- Can specify region (country)
- Can specify all or "only the best" results
- Delivery by email or feed

The specificity of your search statement and your choices regarding frequency, types of content, and "all or only the best" control the balance between being adequately informed and overwhelmed!

Use same syntax as in a regular Google search (terms automatically ANDed, can use OR and quotation marks, an a minus sign for a "NOT")

About 200 regional/country choices.

An email notification will be sent to you that you will need to reply to (or at that point you can change your mind and cancel).

You must click on the verification link in the email before your alert will be activated.

For each News Alert, you will receive notification for new items that appear in the top 10 records of your search.

Take advantage of the Alerts Management Page to edit and delete alerts, create new alerts, change the type of Alert (News, Web, both), change frequency, etc. If you specify RSS delivery, use the RSS symbol here to get the RSS URL for an alert.

Methods Tip:

• When setting up an/or modifying alerts, take advantage of the site's search syntax. In the case of Google alerts, make use of the OR operator (and, as necessary, the minus sign) and the intitle: prefix to improve both precision and recall.

General Alerts Tools – RSS Feeds

RSS - Acronym for Rich Site Summary and/or Really Simple Syndication. This is an XML (Extensible Markup Language) format by which news providers (and other Web resources such as blogs) can easily syndicate (distribute) their content over the Internet.

Hundreds of thousands of news providers and bloggers "syndicate" their output by making the output available as an RSS feed. Individuals can sign up for the newsfeeds of their choice and read them through RSS "readers", including "portals" such as My Yahoo and or websites/programs such as RSS Feed Reader (a Chrome add-on) and Feedly.

Readers: Web-Based Aggregators and Search Engines

Understanding the Mechanism of Using RSS Feeds.

1. ABC Organisation each day has news they want to distribute to anyone who wants to receive it.

2. ABC Organisation each day creates and puts on the Web a specially coded page (basically unreadable by anyone except programmers) that contains the day's news. That page is referred to as an "RSS feed" page.

The KEY action for anyone who want to automatically receive news from an organisation is to get the URL of that RSS feed.

To get the URL of a news feed, click on the RSS (or XML) link on a website and then copy the URL

Once one gets that URL, they enter the URL into their RSS reader. Thereafter,

1. The RSS reader will regularly retrieve that page (containing the "new" news from ABC organisation) and

2. make the new news available to each person who has requested that news from ABC Organisation.

Some websites make the process easier, but the above approach is the most universal way to take advantage of RSS feeds.

Three Examples of RSS Readers

My Yahoo

my.yahoo.com

My Yahoo builds a Web-based RSS reader into its outstanding personal portal.

This is one of the simplest of readers to use. Can have up to 50 modules on a page and My Yahoo! allows 5 pages.

For many sites with RSS feeds, when you click on the feed link, My Yahoo will be a choice. This makes it extremely easy to add a feed to your My Yahoo page.

Regarding mobile apps: There is no separate app for My Yahoo. There are apps (both Android and IOS) for Yahoo itself and those apps have a link to My Yahoo. (Look under the upper left menu, then there, under More Sites .) Also, My Yahoo can be accessed through a browser on mobile devices.

However – In none of the mobile situations can you "Add Content" to My Yahoo. You must use a desktop or laptop to add content (which thereafter will appear on the mobile devices).

To add an RSS feed to My Yahoo:

1. Get the URL of the RSS feed

2. Sign in to your My Yahoo and click the "Add Content" tab

	му ҮАНОО!					Search Web]
\backslash	My Front Page	Tech Center	Travel	News	My Finances	OSINT	What's New	Searching	Disaster Alerts
	Add Content Choose T	hemes Edit Lay	out

3. Copy the RSS feed URL into the box then shown.

de t	Applications	;		ess Book			Bookman	rks	ite aitea		^	er 5

4. Click the magnifying glass to search for that feed.

RSS Feed Reader (Downloaded Chrome extension)

1. Download the reader from an apps store or "Chrome Web store". An icon for the reader will thereafter appear on the Chrome toolbar. (For a small fee, you can subscribe to RSS Feed Reader and synch the program for all devices you use.)

- 2. Click on an RSS feed link.
- 3. Copy the URL from the RSS feed page.

4.Click the RSS Feed Reader icon now found on the Chrome Toolbar.

5. Click the plus sign to add a feed

6. Paste in the URL Then click "Search". (If you are on an RSS feed page, the reader will automatically show the feed. If so, click "Follow".)

7. To see your current feeds, click on the icon on the toolbar

8. Click on an item of interest.

Results will also be automatically displayed as a popup on your screen if you have that setting enabled from the "Settings" link of the reader.

Feedly

Get started at wwww.feedly.com Or search for the app on an apps store.

This is a highly-regarded and easy-touse, but typically-structured, RSS reader.

Once you have signed up (you can do so with your Google or Facebook login), open the app or go to www.feedly.com.

In the box, paste a URL or enter a topic (preceded by a hash mark) or a website name. Feedly will search for an RSS page

If Feedly finds an RSS, a box will appear beneath the search box. Click on the plus sign in the box to add the feed..

You can just click the Add button on the left, or choose (or create) a folder in which to place that feed.

Use the Organize option to recategorise, etc.

Finding Relevant RSS Feeds

- 1. Go to websites you know and look there for RSS feeds (and other alerting options).
- 2. Check for other websites sites relevant to your area of interest.
 - Use the search features built into RSS Readers, e.g., RSS Feed Reader (Chrome) and Feedly. (Shown on previous two pages)
 - Use Bing's "hasfeed:" and "feed:" search prefixes

Finding Relevant RSS Feeds Using Bing (bing.com)

Among the various search prefixes available in Bing, two are specifically relevant to finding RSS feeds:

hasfeed: will find webpages that contain a feed on a particular topic:

feed: will find specific RSS feed pages that include a particular term hasfeed:

e.g. hasfeed: "rights of the child"

be followed on Facebook and Twitter

Clicking on the RSS feed icon yielded the following pages, which shows two different feeds available.

Clicking on them provides the RSS feed pages, including he URL to be used in an RSS reader.

On Twitter and Facebook

Social Networking Sites

For actual and reliable information from governments, organisations, and companies. Twitter, YouTube, and Facebook and are the three social networking sites of most significance.

For all three, the mechanism for being alerted to news and events of interest there are two approaches:

- 1. "Following" particular organisations or people of interest.
- 2. Setting up an automatic alert using a specialised search engine.

"Following" on Social Networks

To "follow" on any social network, you need to have an account for the site, e.g., a Twitter account

Twitter

twitter.com

To identify Twitter members of interest you can search on your topic of interest in the Twitter search box.

On search results pages, Click the "More options" link and then choose Accounts" to see accounts related to the topic (not just "tweets" related to the topic.

If your topic is very narrow, seeing individual tweets may be helpful in identifying others who have the same interest.

For many organisations, tweets are the very first "official" announcement of events and other news.

To stop following anyone, on your home page, click "Following" to get a list of those you are following, then uncheck the undesired account

YouTube.com

www.youtube.com

Many organisations, particularly large organisations, have a "channel" on Facebook that contains all of the videos they have uploaded.

To subscribe to a channel, click the Subscribe button beneath the header image on the page

Thereafter, when you go to YouTube, click on a "subscription" to see new material from channels to which you subscribed.

Beside the Subscribe button , click on the gear to be notified when new videos have been uploaded.

Facebook

facebook.com

Facebook is not as useful for alerts since organisation pages are not "friended", only "liked". Liking a page may indeed cause postings to appear on your own Facebook News Feed.

Social Networking Sites Alerts

Talkwalker

Fee-based part of Talkwalker allows you to monitor, analyse, and benchmark topics in social network conversations.

Free portion provides alerts of 10 social networking sites, plus news, blogs, and discussions.

Click on Alerts/Search button to get to. links for the search and alerts functions

In creating alerts you can use Boolean (AND, AND NOT [for minus], quotation marks for phrases, site;, * for truncation, etc.. See "Search Syntax" link for details.

You can also specify the type of results, language, frequency, and number of results displayed.

"Manage Alerts' page allows easy editing and deleting of your alerts.

Tracking Websites –

Being Alerted to Changes in a Page

There are services that will notify you by email (or otherwise) when a particular page has changed.

Easiest situation – Pages that have RSS feeds, with an intentional alert to new items (sites that are happy for everyone to know that there is a change.)

Solution – Use an RSS reader (My Yahoo, Bloglines, etc.)

Other Situations – Pages that don't have an RSS feed. (Less sophisticated sites, sites that don't provide "news", and those that are aiming for a smaller, select audience.)

Solution – Use website services and software that enables you to automatically be alerted when something changes on a page.

- Some are free, some require a subscription. (Some offer a free trial.)
- Some, e.g., Google Alerts, search for new occurrence of a term(s) on a page, or new pages containing a term(s)
- Some, (e.g., Infominder, WebSite-Watcher, WatchThatPage) alert you anytime any change occurs on a page (at least any change in wording)

Google's own alert service is simplest, but may not be as flexible, precise, or timely as client software such as WebSite Watcher, InfoMinder, and WatchThatPage.

WebSite-Watcher

www.aignes.com

Downloaded program. Subscription required (but has free trial)

- Can cover websites that require a login.

- Can monitor pages as frequently as once a minute

- Can monitor for specific keywords.

- Notification by email

- Saves changed pages to your own computer

- Highlights changes and words you have selected

- Interface in 8 languages

- Can use filters to ignore content such as date and time.

- Can watch an entire website as well as specific pages (and can specify depth of links)

Free service for individuals, fee requested for professional users.

Notices sent by email, or to a personal webpage. Weekly or daily. Shows changed text "Channels" enable you to group pages by topic or WatchThatPage settings.

For most browsers there are add-ons that allow you to identify changes in pages. The following is one example.

Update Scanner – Firefox Add-On

addons.mozilla.org/en-US/firefox/addon/updatescanner/developers or sourceforge.net/p/updatescanner/wiki /Home/

Go to one of the above addresses and download the program.

Once installed, look under "Tools" for the Update Scanner. Clicking on "Update Scanner" brings up the Update Scanner panel

To add a page:

Open the update scanner. Go to the page you want to add. In the scanner, click the New Entry button. The name and URL of the page will automatically be filled in. Change frequency and threshold if you wish.

Thereafter, when you want to check page, open the scanner, click Scan to scan all pages or use the checkboxes to scan specific pages.

There are many other similar services, including ChangeDetection, ChangeDectect, Wisdom Change, Copernic Tracker, ChangeNotes, and TrackEngine. A review of several of these types of "page-watching" services can be found at: Monitoring Web Page Changes: www.rba.co.uk/sources/monitor.htm

Tracking Trends

Google Trends

www.google.com/trends
