Predictive Services Discussion: A deep upper-level trough will move onshore the Pacific Northwest tonight with moderate to heavy precipitation expected across northern California and Northwest west of the Cascades today and tonight. Precipitation is also likely tonight into the northern Sierra and interior Northwest with snow above 8000 feet. Weak upper-level ridging is forecast over the Rockies with troughing over the eastern US. A cold front will move through the Appalachians into the Northeast, Mid-Atlantic, and Deep South with showers and thunderstorms ahead of it from the northern Gulf Coast, through the Appalachians and into the eastern Great Lakes and Northeast.

Unfamiliar With Weather and Local Factors

Weather - Fire Behavior Category

What kinds of questions would you ask of local experts?

Does the operational period plan or Incident Action Plan (IAP) give you adequate weather information? What kinds of weather forecasts are available? What other weather or local information do you look for in the plan?

Can you get information from resources that have been on the fire? What questions will you ask of the crew that you are replacing?

Is there any other way to obtain information? List common sources of information on weather and local factors. Examples include web-based Weather Activity Planner, Point Forecast Matrix, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) Internet Briefing.

To reduce risks:

- Base all actions on current and expected fire behavior.
- Establish escape routes and safety zones.
- · Post lookouts.
- Discuss a fire where you relied on information from the local unit. For example, where your fire knowledge and experience was very different from how they did things – such as in the southeastern United States or Alaska.
- Recognize and report visual indicators (clouds, weather observed, cold front passage, inversion breaking).
