Can Obstetrics and Gynecology Doctors specialize in a certain area within Gynecology? Gynecologists can specialize in different fields within the practice of gynecology. Some of these specializations are listed below: 1. OB/GYN (Obstetrician/Gynecologist) - OB/GYNs specialize in pregnancy management and in the treatment of women's reproductive disorders. They are one of the most known specialists in the field and they provide preventive care, along with also helping you to detect sexually transmitted diseases if any. 2. Urogynecologist - These gynecology doctors specialize in curing pelvic floor disorders. They do so through reconstructive surgery as well as non-surgical methods. 3. Reproductive Endocrinologist - These doctors can assist you in times of reproductive disorders such as infertility. They are specialists in treating hormonal disorders, infertility, pregnancy loss, menopause, and menstrual problems. 4. Gynecologic Oncologists - They play a very important role in this field since they help patients in treating reproductive-organ cancers. The treatment of the cancer is done predominantly through surgery which includes various processes. These processes include urological surgery, radical pelvic surgery, and gastrointestinal surgery. Is it safe to consult gynecology doctors during the COVID-19 Pandemic? With the increase in preventive measures being taken to protect people from the novel coronavirus, it is imperative to follow the guidelines put in place to ensure not just their safety, but also the safety of everyone around them. If you are an expecting mother or have recently delivered and you experience COVID-19 symptoms such as fever, cough and breathing difficulty, you should consult "gynecologist near me" online immediately. Otherwise, you should reach out to a general physician to gain clarity on your symptoms and the necessary steps to take. Coronavirus during pregnancy can be dealt with by talking to a doctor at the earliest and managing symptoms. A ladies specialist doctor or a general medicine doctor will be able to inform you of the steps you need to take. You can now consult a gynecologist online instead of meeting them in person. When you meet a doctor online it is known as telemedicine or telehealth. In case you have a routine check with your doctor in person, please ensure that you are wearing a mask and maintaining the social distance mandated by the government. In such times, in order to maintain your health and your baby's health, gynecologists ask some standard questions such as: How is your health, and are you facing any urgent symptoms of COVID-19? Do you have access to good internet and technology for meeting your doctor online? What is the spread of the virus in your locality over the past month? If you are presenting any COVID symptoms, you should talk to a doctor online at the earliest. Our MFine app allows you to avail online medical consultation with a doctor of your choice without any long waiting periods, all from the safety of your own home. Your doctor will also let you know if you need to reach out to a nearby coronavirus testing center.. In case you do present symptoms of coronavirus during pregnancy, you should isolate yourself from other members of the household and start monitoring yourself for possible worsening of symptoms of coronavirus. We urge you to take out a few minutes of your time to help contribute to the tracking of the spread of coronavirus symptoms and infections in your locality and city with MFine's COVID-19 radar. As the coronavirus has been seen to mutate into various strains, diagnosing the disease accurately can help with the infected receiving the necessary coronavirus treatment according to the severity of their symptoms. In case you are presenting any early flu symptoms or respiratory infection symptoms, you should consult "gynecologist near me" online especially if you are presenting symptoms of coronavirus during pregnancy. During this pandemic, it is highly advisable to opt for a COVID antibody RT PCR test for safety and assurance at the comfort of your home accurately on MFine. If you are in the middle of your pregnancy during coronavirus pandemic or are experiencing symptoms of coronavirus during pregnancy such as early flu symptoms or respiratory infection symptoms, the most crucial step is to talk to a doctor online. This allows you to stay safe by avoiding stepping out to a hospital and allows you to take care of yourself at home. A women's health specialist or gynecologist will be able to talk you through what you need to do based on your symptoms, condition, and how far along you may be in your pregnancy. The simple answer to this is, no. A gynaecologist treats a number of women's health-related issues, from menstrual disorders to infections. An obstetrician, on the other hand, provides care and treatment during pregnancy, during labour and delivery and during the postpartum recovery period following the delivery. An OB-GYN is a combination of the two and is specialized in both fields. A gynaecologist treats women's health-related issues at every stage of a woman's life, from puberty to menopause. An obstetrician is specialized in the field of pregnancy, delivery and postpartum care. It is a major surgery, therefore, your body needs adequate time to recover from C-section. Mothers are required to spend at least 4 days in the hospital following the C-section, however, this number could be higher if there were any complications during the procedure. In general, a C-section requires a 6-week recovery period before you can start exerting yourself. In most cases, pain during sex or pain during penetration is normal and is usually due to a lack of lubrication. Sometimes, however, painful sex could be a symptom of an underlying condition such as an infection, Pelvic Inflammatory Disease (PID), endometriosis, muscle spasms in the vagina or chronic pain. If pain during sex or pain during penetration persists, you should consult a gynaecologist. Vaginal discharge/white discharge is usually normal and is, in fact, a sign of a healthy vagina. Fluids in the vagina eliminate bacteria, thus protecting you from an infection. The appearance and smelly discharge can vary depending upon the stage of the ovulation cycle, during pregnancy and even during breastfeeding. There are many types of birth control options available today. The best option will depend upon your requirements. Here are the most popular methods of birth control: Method Efficacy rate Advantages Disadvantages Male condoms 82% Protects against pregnancy and STDs Might break or decrease sensitivity Female condoms 79% May offer protection against some STDs Might break or decrease sensitivity Sponge with spermicide 76-88% Can be used for 24 hours Can be messy and might cause toxic shock syndrome IUD 99% Can be used for 10 years Might cause cramps or increase PMS symptoms Combination pill 91% Can reduce discomfort during periods Needs to be taken according to schedule Sex during pregnancy is completely safe and natural. While there are some claims that sex during the final weeks of pregnancy can cause contractions, these claims have not been fully substantiated. You can consult with your gynaecologist to make sure that sex during your final trimester is safe.
