How To Say Yes When Your Body Says No!

By: William Wong N.D., Ph.D., and Member, World Sports Medicine Hall of Fame

We're all mostly familiar with the adrenal glands. Yes, they produce adrenaline to hype us up and keep us going, but they also make all of the cortisol and inflammatory hormones and testosterone, as well. All of these glands need to communicate with each other in order for you to get an erection. In our youth, the chatter between these organs was easy. As we got older (remember that "old age" begins at 27), the adrenals get tired [exhausted actually] and the pituitary gets sluggish. So what if a tired set of adrenal glands gets the "hard-on" signal from the pituitary? It doesn't have to listen; no matter how much pleasure the hypothalamus perceives we're having! tt

How did you get a tired set of adrenals? ... You live in the modern world, filled with stress, pollution, work and worry. Worse still you work out too many days a week and take the little glands past exhaustion to near dead by using caffeine and aspirin stacks, ephedra, pseudoephedrine, bronchial stimulators etc. When your body tells you to take a hike, that it isn't going to do what you want it to do -- no matter what blue pill, supplement or voodoo you may throw down your gullet --you've got major trouble. You likely won't listen if I advise you to change your lifestyle, lower your stress, stop overtraining, so I won't go into any of that...You've got to make those organs communicate clearly with each other and you've got to make them respond to signals. I

Enter Dr. Chi... He has come up with a way to make the pituitary/ hypothalamus / adrenal axis to not only communicate and respond, but to make it work better than it ever did! It's all done with science and Chinese herbs. I met Chi at the Anaheim Expo West. One of the supplements he had for sale was a little white bottle of capsules labeled Super X. I noted all of the "old" fellows buying the stuff. Out of curiosity I asked Dr. Chi what it did. "Oh, it's an herbal Viagra that really works," he humbly told me. Not being that spry in years and always looking for a boost, I tried the stuff. Wow! The little blue pill can't hold a candle to Super X. Rock-hard erections on demand, just like the ones I had at age 17! But even better than I had at 17 because there was no down time between orgasms -I went from one erection straight to another. At this point, the doc in me is supposed to say something like: "These results may not be typical. Individual results may vary. Consult your health professional for advice (like he might really know something)." Having gotten that out of the way, I still maintain this stuff is rocket fuel for the penis. So order a bottle, follow label directions and get ready for a wild ride!.
