GENERAL ADVERTISING GUIDELINES

Florida Market Bulletin classified ads are posted online each month by the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. Through these ads, the Market Bulletin provides a forum for Florida residents to buy and sell agriculturally related items while also giving widespread exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Market Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads, and all items offered for sale must have been produced or used on the seller's property.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and to maintain the objectives of the Market Bulletin. The editorial staff reserves the right to revise or reject any ad and determine exceptions to the rules and regulations.

Before submitting an ad for publication, carefully check the General Advertising Guidelines and also the Rules and Regulations under the category heading for which your ad is being submitted. Many ads require signed statements or permit numbers. Ads that do not meet applicable rules will not be published.

1. All advertisements must be agriculturally oriented.
2. Only Florida residents are eligible to advertise in the Market Bulletin. Only Florida products may be advertised.

3. Ads must include the seller's name, address, county, zip code, and telephone number. E-mail addresses will be published if provided.
4. No business, trade or commercial names will be accepted.
5. Ads from dealers or agents are unacceptable. A dealer is any person who buys or acquires agricultural livestock, equipment or other merchandise for the purpose of resale; an agent is any person soliciting agricultural merchandise for sale or distribution under the partial or full control of an owner or dealer, farm equipment or machinery outlet, etc.
6. Ads must be submitted in writing -- either typed or printed clearly -- and limited to 20 words excluding required information. The Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit all ads.
7. Ad forms or facsimiles should be mailed, faxed, or delivered to the Market Bulletin office. Facsimiles must include all information required by the ad form. Ads may also be submitted online at www.FreshFromFlorida.com.
8. Advertisers may run up to three ads per category per issue.
9. All items in an ad should pertain to one category only.
10. A new copy of an ad must be submitted for each issue of the Market Bulletin in which the ad is to run.
11. An asking price should be included for all items offered.
12. Wanted ads soliciting free animals will not be accepted.
