

Reading and Math Websites for Students

www.brainpop.com

This is good for reading and math. You get a 5 day free trial and then it cost. It would be beneficial for grades k-4.

www.starfall.com

This is great for learning or reviewing phonics skills. It even has little books online to go along with the skill.

www.gamequarium.com

This is great for math and reading for all grades K-4. It has games, lessons, and free printables for teachers.

www.scholastic.com/kids/games.com

This is good for K-4. They can create their own stories, and characters, etc.

<http://www.rif.org/>

Reading is Fun! Has a website for kids to express themselves, play games, do an activity lab and a BOOK ZONE. Log in to join! It's free! It's fun!

http://www.Kidpub.org/kid_pub/

Log in here to write your own story, read stories by other kids, add a paragraph to a Never Ending story and more!

<http://www.kidsdomain.com>

At Kids domain, you have games of all kinds!

<http://www.db.education-world.com>

Look here for resources that will help you work and practice at home! Over 100 sites to choose from.

<http://www.kidskorner.net>

Meet “Topper” the car that will show you some fun! Learn through puzzles, games, stories, songs, rhymes, and more.

<http://www.crinkles.com>

Make “crinkles” in your brain by learning at this site. There are online activities as well as ones you can check out at your public library in the latest issue of “Crinkles”

<http://www.pbskids.org/readingrainbow>

Reading is fun at the PBS Reading Rainbow site. Adventures, books, contests, games as well as the PBS TV schedule are found here. Great for the whole family.

<http://www.storyplace.org>.

A digital library in English and/or Spanish. This interactive website is for preschool, elementary and older.

<http://www.kidbibs.com>.

Find great online stories, cool information, sites to publish your writing, games and more. Need homework help? Click into Kidbibs.

<http://www.discoveryschool.com>

The Discovery Channel’s website for everyone. Choose from homework helpers to Brain Boosters.

<http://www.kidsplanet.org>

Get facts on hundreds of animals. Play some “wild games”, or look into the web of life.

<http://www.candlelightstories.com>

Children in school (k-5) can read picture books online. Also includes spelling games and ABC activities.

<http://www.timeforkids.com>

A great site for reading the news and what is going on in the world.
Kids even do the reporting.

www.illuminations.nctm.org

This is good for K-4. It provides an activity/lesson search for teachers.
It can be used for problem solving or exploring number concepts.

www.amathsdictionaryforkids.com

This is good for math vocabulary. This might be better for the older kids.

www.mathplayground.com

This is good for extra practice for money for grades K-4, and many more activities.

<http://www.aplusmath.com>

A website developed to help students improve their math skills interactively. It also has a homework helper.

<http://www.coolmath4kids.com>

An amusement park of math and more...especially designed for fun, fun, fun.

<http://www.aaamath.com>.

Hundreds of basic math skills, interactive practice, games, and randomly selected problems.