INTRODUCTION

So you've just learned how to TubeLoom, and you are ready and raring to go, but one big question is probably nagging you right now. What is the most profitable market for you to launch-jack?

There are hundreds of markets out there, and most of them differ greatly from one another in terms of profitability. Health, money-making, marketing—the number of things you can sell is endless. And as someone new to affiliate marketing, it may seem like a daunting task to pick a product niche out of this vast ocean of possibilities.

Of course, you could always just choose something at random and go from there, but that's not the best way to go about it. Sure, you might be able to sell ice to penguins, but why make life harder for yourself by choosing something that is difficult to sell? Keep in mind that what you sell can be just as important as how you sell it.

What you need is a guide to the most profitable niches out there. The evergreen markets that are always making money, no matter what time of year it is. The markets that can have you earning huge commissions in no time at all and have you raking in the cash.

Here's the good news.

This is that guide.

Here is where you will learn the secrets to finding a profitable market. It will be broken down into an easy-to-follow, step-by-step guide. This will make it incredibly easy for you to choose the most profitable niche for you.

And that's just the first part.

You will also learn the 10 most profitable markets for you to TubeLoom about, along with explanations of why each market is profitable, as well as the two hottest products from each market right now. This report is your cheat sheet into choosing your products. So what are you waiting for? Let's dive right in.

CHAPTER 01: FINDING MARKETS 101

The first step to earning the big bucks with TubeLoom is choosing a market. As mentioned, there are a huge number of markets and products out there, and not all of them sell well enough to qualify as big money earners. In order to find the ones that do qualify, you have to know how to choose.

That's what you're going to learn here — the fundamentals of choosing a profitable market for you to TubeLoom about. We've broken it down into an easy-to-follow four step process for you that will make finding what you need a lot easier. So let's get started.

Step 1: Brainstorm an Audience

Products will come and go. They'll sell well one minute, and be completely off the market the next. But the one constant is always going to be your audience. Before you decide what you want to sell, you have to know who you want to sell it to.

Choosing an audience can be done in a couple of ways. The first way you can go about it is by choosing the customer base that you represent. So, if you're a working professional in your 30s, that is the audience you'll go for. This way, you'll have a deeper understanding of the needs and wants of the audience, since you will be a part of it.

Another option is for you to choose an audience you find yourself drawn to. In other words, look at your friends, the people you hang out with, and use them as your audience. Again, this allows you to have a deeper understanding of them, making it easier to sell them what they need.

The final way you can go about things is by working backwards. Find a niche that interests you and go from there. Do research to figure out what groups are interested in that niche and who is spending money on it. Be wary though, since it is possible that what interests you isn't selling at all, and you might have to choose another niche.

Step 2: Identify the Problems Faced by Your Audience

Now you have your audience, the next step is finding out what they want. Every audience out there has specific expectations from the products that they buy. Your job is find out what these are.

You need to know, and understand, the problems your audience faces on a daily basis. Ask yourself, what challenges do they face? Are there any particular pain points that affect them? Maybe they have a set of aspirations and desires that you can tap into?

This will require a bit of research, but it is worth the time and effort. Knowing their problems and desires is a crucial step when it comes to finding your markets.

Step 3: Pick the most Profitable Pain Points

You've noted down all the problems that your audiences faces, so the next thing to do is find which of those will earn the most money. Not all of them are going to be big earners. Some of them will be hard to sell, while others will be incredibly easy. Understanding the difference between the two will help you on your way.

A good way to do this is to find out the number of monthly searches related to your list of problems. The higher the number of searches, the more likely it is that the audience is desperately searching for a solution.

Another thing you have to keep in mind is how readily available quality information on the problem is. If your audience can find the answers on the Internet for free, on blogs and the like, it is highly unlikely that they will pay for a product that addresses the same issue.

Step 4: Understand Profitable Problems

Once you've identified the problems that earn the most money, you need to understand them. For example, say you know that a certain group of people is looking for weight loss solutions, where do you go from there? You can't just dive into selling weight loss solutions, because your audience will have a set of wants for what they are buying. You need to be more specific.

You need to be able to understand these wants, and what problems your audience has with the current weight loss solutions on the market. This will help you sell it to them more effectively, and increase your profit margins a great deal.

Once you have chosen your audience, and have a deep understanding of their needs and wants, it becomes a lot easier to choose a profitable market and product. Instead of struggling to come up with ideas, you will instantly know what to promote and how.

So, now that you know the basics, let's go on to the 10 most profitable markets out there!
