

1PM

JENNIFER BAKER
WRITER, EDITOR, ADVOCATE, PODCASTER
MINORITIES IN PUBLISHING

Jennifer Baker is a publishing professional of 16 years, creator/host of the Minorities in Publishing podcast, and contributing editor to Electric Literature. In 2017, she received a NYSCA/NYFA Fellowship and a Queens Council on the Arts New Work Grant for Nonfiction Literature. Her essay “What We Aren’t (or the Ongoing Divide)” was listed as a Notable Essay in The Best American Essays 2018. Jennifer is also the editor of the all PoC-short story anthology Everyday People: The Color of Life (Atria Books, 2018). jennifernbaker.com.

Jennifer Baker presents BIPOCs in Publishing

Publishing is a varied industry with many roles and possibilities. So what is the state of publishing for those working within it? What are the ways in which one can pursue being part of it from the groundwork up and how do creators fit in? Jennifer Baker, creator of the Minorities in Publishing podcast, gives an overview of publishing from the inside (and outside) as well as perspectives she’s encountered running her podcast for five years and talking with myriad guests on their experiences and what they do and how their vision adds to a more inclusive industry for those working in it and creating for it.

