The Donald E. Stephens Museum
 of Hummels

The late Mayor Donald E. Stephens discovered M.L. Hummels in the 1960s when he took his son on a trip to Europe, and he promptly became a collector. The Mayor's fascination with this art grew as he became attracted to the challenge of acquiring the rarer pieces, such as the figurines in the International Collection and "Little Velma," among many others.

In 1984, Mayor Donald E. Stephens donated what was by then his extensive private collection of M.L. Hummel figurines to the Village of Rosemont. Through the unique Donald E. Stephens Museum of Hummels - the largest public display of M.L. Hummels in the world - Mayor Stephens shared his love of the figurines with millions of national and international Rosemont visitors while housed at the Donald E. Stephens Convention Center.

Today, the establishment of the new museum location will ensure not only that the collection will remain intact, but that it will continue to grow and might even capture the hearts of a new generation of collectors.
