YOU CAN DO IT!

Get Ahead Before Enrolling

Are you looking to get a head start on your degree? By taking your prerequisite courses online, you're setting yourself up for success:

- Get a leg up on your major by completing your prerequisites now. Advanced level courses often have prerequisites you need to complete before you can enroll.
- Take a reduced course load next semester. If you need to take a heavy load of required upper-level courses for your degree, such as labs, project-work, or core major requirements, a reduced course load can let you focus on these critical courses.
- Complete a challenging course in a low-risk environment. Use this time to complete courses that will get you credit, but won't affect your GPA.

I'm not a patient person. Online education helped me expedite [the degree] process and to continue to work full time. StraighterLine allowed me to learn material at my own pace.

- Seth Whitworth, Colorado State University - Global

“

At the end of the semester, I found out I needed biology in order to graduate. I was like, 'oh no!' The spring biology class didn't fit in my schedule...I liked being able to take the [StraighterLine] course on my own time.

- Brian Shulda, Liberty University

Graduate On Time

Have you fallen behind on your degree plan? By enrolling in online courses, you can catch up if you are in danger of falling behind:

- Say goodbye to waitlists! At many colleges, the most popular general education classes fill up fast. You never have to wait online.
- Retake courses at your convenience. If you had to drop a course, got an incomplete, or didn't perform as well as you hoped on your exams, summer courses can get you back on track.
- Change your major without losing time. If you've decided to change majors, but are missing the necessary prerequisites, you can use online classes to get up to speed without losing aid eligibility.

Accelerate Your Degree

Are you looking to graduate early and for less money? By completing a semester's worth of classes online you can significantly reduce your cost of college:

- Reduce your cost of college. By completing your general education courses online through StraighterLine, you can earn your degree for a fraction of the cost.
- Put your new degree to work, faster. For many working adults, new credentials are the ticket to a new career or a promotion. The quicker you complete your degree, the quicker you can fast track your career.
- Pay less per credit hour. Taking low-cost online college courses can significantly reduce the amount you pay per credit hour. For example, you can pay nearly 10 times less per credit hour for courses completed through StraighterLine than at a private 4-year college.

“

My goal is to earn my bachelor's degree in 1 to 2 years at most. Luckily, I found StraighterLine.

- Johnnie Galbo, Western Governors University

“

I decided there must be a better, less risky, way to earn college credit online. I wanted to find something online that would guide me directly through the material I needed to know. StraighterLine's low-cost courses were just what I was looking for.

- Chris Dubose, Excelsior College

Prepare for College in a Low-Risk Environment

Do you plan on entering a degree program for the first time? Earn college credit, and reduce your risk, by doing college-level coursework before enrolling in your degree program.

- Gain confidence and college-level experience. Barely half of all students that start a degree finish one. By starting with StraighterLine this fall, you can avoid making a life-changing mistake.
- Experience the time commitment. By taking college courses in advance of enrollment, you can gain first-hand experience of the time requirements necessary to complete a degree and test your motivation to continue.
- Increase your success. Students that transfer courses from StraighterLine are almost twice as likely to complete a degree than those that don't.
