Those who know claim that Mr. Geo. K. Robinson, the cotton factor, has the most complete corn mill in Marion county. He has it rigged up in his stable and it is driven by a gasoline engine. It shells the corn and grinds it, or it takes the cob and corn and does the grinding beautifully. The completeness of the arrangement to supply feed for his stock is worthy of imitation.

It affords the Star great pleasure to note the fact that Mr. Neil Alfred is improving in health rapidly at Hendersonville, N. C., also that Mr. Lucien Hubbard is receiving great benefit from that climate.

Mr. Wicker of the extensive mercantile firm of Wicker, Bridges and Co., of Coleman, was in town yesterday, and purchased from Standley and Co. one of the finest teams and outfits that has ever left this city. These gentlemen, besides being the leading merchants of their live and progressive town, are also among the most successful truckers of that section.

Sam Poozer returned from Summerfield Tuesday where he put up and set in motion a McCormick corn cutter, for Joe Davis, who has nearly 100 acres of corn that is said to be the equal, if not a little better than Col. L. P. Miller's, which was said to be the best field of corn in Marion county. Mr. Poozer is showing Captain Swinson, in charge of Colonel Miller's place, how to cut corn with a McCormick.

Major Izlar is making an experimental long staple cotton crop. Owing to the dry weather he got a very poor stand. In South Carolina the major always grew short staple cotton and thinks it would prove more profitable than the long staple.

BELL WAS NOT BURNED

An Unknown Negro Was Killed and an Unoffensive One Was Mortally Wounded

(Savannah Morning News.)

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 17.—With the exception of wild rumors that have been flying around the streets today, Statesboro is as quiet as on any summer's day. Business has resumed, women again traverse the streets without fear of hearing or seeing the expression of any of the wild passions that convulsed the community yesterday.

Business in the city has resumed its normal state, but the evil after-effects are now commencing to appear in the communities in the country. Negroes are sleeping in the woods, and those in the vicinity of the Hodges' home are moving away as rapidly as they can get the money to move with. In a few weeks it will be harvesting time with the farmers, and then the real hardship brought on by the sensational execution will be experienced. There will be few hands available to pick cotton, and the turpentine industry will suffer for labor.

All-night clubs, composed largely of men of inflamed minds, have been organized in several sections of the county and negroes are being whipped almost nightly. Irresponsible white people who have grudges against negroes, some of whom are peaceful and well-mannered, take their revenge by visiting their homes at night and whipping them. These whippings are of nightly occurrence, and some of them are most brutal.

Rev. Stubbs, pastor of the White Hardshell Baptist church, which has a large membership of prominent citizens here, has called a meeting of the elders, and it is understood that all members of the church against whom there is evidence of participation in the lynching, will be expelled from the church.

Early this morning news was received in the city that a negro, supposed to be Handy Bell, had been found on Lett's bridge, about nine miles from Statesboro, shot to pieces. A large number of people who knew Bell, went out and viewed the remains and all stated that it was not Bell. Up to this hour the body has not been identified.

Albert Roberts, an old negro living near Register, and his 17-year-old son were shot last night. A large number of men, supposedly some of those who participated in the lynching here, drove by the house about midnight and fired a broadside into it. The old man was mortally wounded. He was well liked and peaceable.

People living in Register and that vicinity are highly incensed at the shooting and state that they will make a determined effort to apprehend the guilty parties and bring them to justice.

WAS WASTING AWAY

"I had been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years," writes Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo. "I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians, and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure, and less than two bottles completely cured me, and I am now sound and well." During the summer, kidney irregularities are often caused by excessive drinking or being overheated. Attend to the kidneys at once by using Foley's Kidney Cure. BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

Practicability and Benefit of Prospective Electric Lines to Silver Springs and Lake Weir Discussed

The Ocala board of trade held its regular monthly meeting last night in the council chamber; President Ford in the chair.

The interest of the meeting centered in the suggestive talk made by Major Izlar that would materially assist Ocala in her growth and development. He said that no town could grow and become a center from absorption alone, the way to grow is to do something, create something for ourselves. One thing that Ocala could do that would assist her would be to build an electric railroad from Silver Springs to Ocala and continue it to Lake Weir. At the springs erect a casino, with amusements, so the people of Ocala and contiguous points, when the day's work was done, could go out and recreate. The same in regard to Lake Weir. That beautiful spot would attract a large number of summer visitors with the proper accommodations, as all who saw it were delighted with it. It would induce winter tourists to come here. These points would interest them if they could be easily reached. Satisfied tourists in time become investors. This electric line would be the connecting link as a freight line between the springs and Ocala, and with proper support from the merchants could be made to pay beyond question. He could not say what such a line would cost, as he had written to experienced builders and had not received yet the data. He knew of several points in South Carolina that had inaugurated such projects, and in towns no larger than Ocala, with profit. Moreover, the places spoken of had no such attractions and prospective business as Ocala could have by means of the line suggested.

Editor Harris followed Major Izlar and said that Mr. Brooks of Maynard, Mass., who had been coming to Citra for the last thirty years, had been one of the pioneer orange growers of that citrus home and was still interested in it, was surprised that Ocala did not construct just such a line as Major Izlar suggested. These lines had been made very profitable in the Old Bay State and he could not see why Ocala failed to embrace the opportunity. He said if Ocala could not raise the money to construct the electric line he could get parties who would do it if Ocala would only interest herself.

This talk of Editor Harris suggested to Major Izlar a man who had proved the biggest and most successful promoter of such work he ever knew or heard of, a man who had built an electrical line from Augusta to Aiken, a distance of thirty miles, and it had proved very profitable to those who had invested their money. He also referred to a party at Blackwell, S. C., the major's old home, who was inspecting an ordinary spring of water some five or six miles from the town to which he proposed to build a line such as was spoken of, and if that project was feasible surely Ocala could not afford to be idle by and let the golden opportunity pass of increasing its population and commercial importance.

The major felt confident that if Ocala would show what she could do she could get parties to do the balance.

Mr. Fausett, the successful Exposition street merchant and trade promoter, said the project was a good one, and should be investigated and pushed.

Mr. Campbell of the Ocala Plumbing Company showed that the difference in water and rail rates was equal to 30 per cent, and this alone, if utilized, would create in Ocala a distributing point. He instanced points in Missouri and Kansas, namely, the line between St. Joe, Mo., and Kansas City, a distance of sixty miles, and traversed with four important trunk lines, and one of these roads ran fourteen passenger trains a day between the cities named, yet an electric line had been built parallel to these steam roads, and proved a big success; also another electric line of thirty miles between Girard and Joplin, with plenty of steam roads—had paid and proved a factor to those towns.

Jake Brown said this project was the salvation and rejuvenation of Ocala. He felt it, he knew it, and if he had the capital he would build it single-handed and show the world that it was just the thing.

Mr. Ford spoke along similar lines.

referred to by the previous speakers; said it looked feasible, and if on proper investigation the fact was ascertained that electrical power could be developed by the waters of the springs to run the line, then he, too, was in for it to a finish.

Major Izlar was thanked for his suggestive and instructive address.

Rossie Yonke, Sr., brought up the matter of a new opera house.

Brown and Ford paid their respects to the board of county commissioners in raising the taxes on some twenty-five property owners of Ocala. They were not opposed to the paying of additional taxes, but wanted the county commissioners to raise on all property all over the county where it had advanced and make taxation equitable. This partial assessment raised the assessed value $125,000 on twenty-five Ocala individuals. Were they the only ones whose property had enhanced in value.

Clark Nelson also took a hand in the verbal set-to, and several officials of the board were handled without gloves.

Mr. Ford said he wanted to be just and fair and in return treated in the same way on this matter of taxation.

On motion of Jake Brown President Ford was authorized to appoint a committee as many as he saw fit, to meet the board of county commissioners on the first Monday in September to argue this question with them and enter their solemn protest against partial work bearing on the property of Ocala citizens.
