Background The following is a picture of what a villager looks like in Minecraft: Hostility Level Passive Mob Health Points 20 health points x 10 Where to Find In villages Weapon None Attack Method Will never attack you Drops None Experience Points 0 experience points Hostility Level (Passive) A villager is a passive mob. The term mob is short for mobile and is used to refer to all living, moving creatures in the game such as chickens, creepers, and villagers. Because a villager is a passive mob, it will never attack you in the game (Creative or Survival mode). Health Points In Minecraft, a villager has 10 hearts for health. This gives a villager 20 health points (because 1 heart = 2 health points). To kill a villager, you need to inflict 20 points of damage to the villager. Where to Find Villagers In Minecraft, villagers can be found in villages in most biomes. Each village will be made of different materials depending on the biome. The villages are easy to spot because they are made up of a group of small buildings with gardens of vegetables. Villagers grow gardens of potatoes, carrots, and wheat. When you are running low on food, you can harvest their vegetables for yourself. If you are having trouble finding a villager, you can summon a villager using a cheat or you can use a spawn egg. Weapon A villager does not carry a weapon. Attack Method You are safe to walk near a villager and it will not attack or cause you any damage. And if you attack a villager, it will just try to walk away. It will not attack you back. Drops When you kill a villager in Minecraft, it will not drop anything. It is one of the few mobs that when killed, does not drop any items. Experience Points As you play the game, you will gain experience. The most common way to gain experience is by killing mobs. When a mob is killed you will see tiny green and yellow balls appear and move towards you. These orbs represent experience points. Unfortunately, when you kill a villager, you will not gain any experience points.
