They feel the pressure to do something about it, but just don't know what. If you are a childless-by-choice, it's even more of a pressure because you want to find a child more than anyone and you're at a loss as to how to find one. It's really not that simple. While I'm not a proponent for jumping from this blog to the adoption world, today I'm going to talk about something that a lot of childless people may find useful: fertility treatments. While the majority of people will not be able to have children
