Let us live what you love. All teachers in New York City's public schools receive a professional salary and a package of competitive benefits, earning more for further experiences and courses, or to hire new responsibilities. Salaries We offer extremely competitive salaries to newly rented teachers. Salaries are based on a previous experience, as well as academic courses and grades earned. For 2019-20, initial salaries for teachers range from $ 57,845 (degree for graduation, no previous teaching experience) at $ 87,510 (master's degree, eight years of teaching experience, as well as other courses). The new teachers with the Master's Degree but no preventive teaching experience earns $ 65,026. Wages of $ 4 "c increase every year with more experience and educational qualifications. Your positioning of your salary, which determines the increase of payment given to the teachers with previous experience, will be aimed after you hired. To receive a salary differential, which is an increase in salaries assigned for further courses taken or degrees obtained beyond a bachelor, it is necessary to fill out a separate application after starting teaching. Any differentials that earnings will be applied retroactively, as long as it applies within six months from the start date. The teachers of the benefits can select from a variety of health insurance plans, many of which do not require any contributions employees. Coverage for teachers and their families (including registered domestic partners) starts the first day of use. Teachers also receive dental, visual and prescribed benefits for the prescription through the Federation of Wellness of the United Federation of Teachers (UFT). Find out more, visit the New York City website division. Financial incentives In addition to a competitive salary, there are additional financial incentives for teachers of the NYC public school to take new roles and responsibilities and working in historically subjected school communities. Find out more Visiting our financial incentive webpage. Pension The Teachers' Pension System of the New York City (TRS) A € à,~ "One of the largest pension systems in the country" provides New York City public school teachers with retirement, disabled services and Death Benefit. Teachers can also opt in our tax refurbishment program, an additional retirement plan that allows members to defer taxes on their contributions and any investment gain from these contributions until they collect money as income. The initial salaries for a New York teacher in the first year will increase the next three years at $ 61,070, top from $ 56,711 this year, according to a salary program released Friday by the united teacher federation. Unlike the first contract under Mayor Bill de Blasio announced in 2014, the payment increases included in the new contract are marginal. In this contract, the beginning of the pay teachers jumped by almost 20 percent - almost $ 10,000 - because the city teachers had gone without a contract updated for five years. [Related: Most money for New York City teachers in the contract, but is it a relaunch? Some are pushing back] the 2019-2022 contract, announced four months before the current is due to expiration, it includes annual raises of 2, 2.5 and 3 percent. Teachers have criticized insufficient increases to keep up with the increasing cost of living. A € à,~ "my beloved @uft wants me A contract that does not even include the cost of life increases when I taught in one of the most expensive real estate markets in the United States, A € à,~ Tweeted Samantha Rubin. Under the contractual agreement, which has yet to be ratified by UT members, the maximum wage for teachers will increase from $ 119,565 to $ 128,657. The proposed salary program details how many teachers earn according to how many years have worked and how much education credits have been accrued. Matured. Union published the program as part of a massive document landfill aimed at explaining the new contract. These documents include a description of the proposed changes and the agreement signed by President UFT Michael Mulgrew and Chancellor Schools Richard Carranza, which also made several political changes that will affect schools and classes. Friday afternoon, the UFTA € s Delegate Meeting 3,400 members will meet and vote to recommend the contract proposed to all 129,000 members. Some members complained that the vote feels rushed. The agreement was announced Thursday afternoon and the memorandum was still being completed during the hours before the delegated vote. A. it strikes me as a sort of ram's republican republican power game something through before anyone who has the chance to read the contract, told Will Ehrenfeld, a teacher of American history at P-Tech and a trade union delegate. A. I think itá € s really unacceptable to get not details A € Mulgrew defended the process, saying A € Everyone is going to get a couple of weeks to read the entire Memorandum. A € You can read the full memorandum below. Christina Veiga and Alex Zimmerman contributed. Use links below to see individual school district data, organized by region.
