

EMERGENCY UPDATE SERIES

DOUG HILL | Publisher

The coronavirus panic triggered a massive selloff in the markets this week. So we turned to our expert analysts to hear their take on the mayhem and volatility that investors have faced. Below, you'll find their responses. Keep scrolling to hear their thoughts.

GRAHAM SUMMERS | Editor
Phoenix Press

First up, our top macroeconomic strategist provides a much-needed dose of reality about the coronavirus.

CLICK HERE TO LISTEN TO THE AUDIO

JAMES ALTUCHER | Editor
Choose Yourself Financial

James recorded a special podcast on the coronavirus and the market crash. He breaks down the economics of the virus, why the markets fell, how this will impact the election, and more!

CLICK HERE TO LISTEN TO THE AUDIO

BOB BYRNE | Senior Analyst

TIM COLLINS | Senior Analyst

Next up, senior analysts for The Altucher Alliance, Bob Byrne and Tim Collins, weigh in. On the emergency call, we discuss how the market landscape has changed, what to expect in the near future, and what you should be doing right now to take advantage.

CLICK HERE TO LISTEN TO THE AUDIO

GEORGE GILDER | Editor
Gilder Press

We turned to our resident futurist and as usual, George is approaching the situation from a completely different angle. He relates the virus panic to the research of Nobel Prize winner Thomas Schelling, author of the book Micromotives and Macrobehavior. In short, slight changes in everyone's behavior and ideas – as long as the changes are similar – can have huge effects.

CLICK HERE TO LISTEN TO THE AUDIO

CHUCK HUGHES | Editor
Laissez Faire Books

COMING SOON!

JASON HANSON | Editor
Spy & Survival Briefing

COMING SOON!