Aston Martin DBS - Specially prepared model seen in the film Casino Royale. Road model is due to be introduced at Frankfurt IAA in September 2007. Production starts in October at Aston Martin facility in Gaydon. Production is limited to 300 cars a year.

A DBX model was mentioned on the call announcing the sale of Aston Martin to the consortium led by David Richards and CEO, Ulrich Bez. No further details were provided. The DBX was later revealed to be a possible new flagship for Aston Martin based on the Zagato and compete against the Mercedes McLaren SLR, with speed over 205mph and a V12 mid engine tuned to produce 700bhp.

Some background information on the car producer: Aston Martin Lagonda Limited is a manufacturer of luxury performance cars, whose headquarters are at Gaydon, Warwickshire, England. The company name is derived from the Aston Clinton hill climb and one of the company's founders, Lionel Martin.

From 1994 until 2007 Aston Martin was part of the Premier Automotive Group, a division of the Ford Motor Company. On 12 March 2007, it was purchased by a British consortium led by David Richards of Prodrive for £479 million. Aston Martin's model naming can be confusing to the uninitiated. In general, high performance models use the Vantage name, while convertibles are called Volante.
