Tool Shed - $200 (Englewood)

image 1 of 2

Work with a framing crew, and had this built last fall to protect tools from the winter snow, treated roof sheathing on top, the rear is framed in for a door if you wanted to install one in the back of the shed as well, very well built. Job is done so we're leaving town in a few days, asking $200 obo, which I haven't done the figures but I would bet they cost more than that just in materials to build it. Anyway you pick up I will load it for you. Thanks.

8' Wood Ladder - $15

image 6 of 6

8' wood commercial ladder made by Werner. Rated for 225 lbs. Not sure exactly how to take pictures of a ladder, so I just took pictures from several different angles. The ladder's in great shape, and still works fine, I just don't need it where I'm moving. Please email me with any questions.

12' Wood Ladder - $19

image 6 of 6

For sale, 12' wood ladder in good shape. Bought it to use to clean (and change the bulbs in) a really high light fixture in my house. Probably overdid the pictures, but just tried to take them from several different angles to show you everything you might want to know. Ladder still works great, just don't need it where I'm moving. Please email me with any questions.

Tomorrow is good for me. I will be around the brewery from about 11-5. Are you free sometime in that range?

Glad to hear you like Yak & Yeti! I just started as the new head brewer and I'm excited to start making some fun new beer to add to the lineup we already have. I'm happy to give you a brewery tour if you have time when you come by.

Cheers.

OK, today is a little busy for me though. How about tomorrow?
By the way Yak and Yeti is one of our favorite restaurants and the beer makes it really great.

Thanks,
