

The KINAD educational program designed to enrich your students' knowledge of African American history.

Kinad, Inc., is a non-profit, 501(c)(3) corporation, that will provide an African American History Mobile Museum on-site field experience for 100 of your school's fourth/fifth grade students.

Students will tour the Kinad African American History Mobile Museum and participate in pre/post visit classroom activities that focus on the history and contributions of people of African descent to the social, economic, cultural, and political growth of the United States. The instructional materials provided to students will reinforce the importance of cultural understanding while also supporting academic skills related to vocabulary development, reading, and writing. The content areas of mathematics, science, and geography are also reinforced in the program. Participating students will also be invited to complete an essay focusing on the 2018-2019 Black History theme, "2018 – African Americans in Times of War" The essay winners will receive an award from Kinad, Inc.
