

Brief Descriptions of the 18 Enneagram Types with Wings

1w9: Practical and meticulous perfectionists with a knack for catching inconsistencies in others' reasoning and judgment.

1w2: Socially aware activists and advocates who work tirelessly behind the scenes to uphold high safety standards for others.

2w1: Deeply empathetic and caring individuals who find fulfillment in others' happiness and well-being.

2w3: Outgoing and productive organizers who thrive on connecting people together and being part of a group.

3w2: Socially-savvy and popular go-getters who enjoy meeting new people and networking events.

3w4: Driven and organized 'boss' always on the go with new business ideas and projects—who finds great joy in efficiency and rewards.

4w3: Charismatic and individualistic artist with a sense of wonder about the underlying beauty in nature, as well as the spectrum of human emotions.

4w5: Intense and artistic creator on a mission to use self-expression to highlight the universality of the human condition.

5w4: Idiosyncratic (and often autodidactic) lone ranger who deeply values autonomy and mastery in a subject.

5w6: Detached and curious researcher who gains energy from digging into fascinating topics, under the radar.

6w5: Resourceful and dutiful team worker who highly values security and knowledge, often with a great sense of humor.

6w7: Optimistic and fun-loving explorers of life with a (somewhat contradictory) need for safety and comfort.

7w6: Happy-go-lucky and humorous experience junkie who is always on the search for new projects to undertake.

7w8: Creative and innovative entrepreneur who enjoys experimenting and creating with new mediums and ideas.

8w7: Headstrong and confident self-starter who works hard and plays hard—paired with a fearless attitude.

8w9: Servant leader who keeps others' best interests in mind to preserve harmony and gently encourages them to take action.

9w8: Independent yet calm vagabond on a (rather quiet) mission to discover what makes society a kinder and more accepting place.

9w1: Collected and pragmatic saver who value both cooperation and justice, along with the feeling of being connected to others in their community.