

CLEP®

CLEP® College Composition and College Composition Modular

Two new exams that offer students the opportunity to demonstrate their writing skills

The American Council on Education recommends:

	Score	Credits
College Composition (multiple-choice section and CLEP essays)	50	6
College Composition Modular (multiple-choice section and CLEP or local essays)	50	6
College Composition Modular (multiple-choice section only)	50	3

For more information, including exam content, specifications and sample questions, visit www.collegeboard.org/clepcomposition.

College Composition and College Composition Modular are designed to measure students' introductory-level composition skills.

Developed in response to a nationwide survey of college composition curricula, the new exams emphasize critical thinking, multiple writing modes and research skills assessment. By granting credit for the new exams, you can:

- Recognize students for strong composition skills
- Allow proficient students to move into more advanced classes, keeping them engaged and motivated

College Composition vs. College Composition Modular

College Composition

- Multiple-choice section
- Two essays, scored by CLEP®

College Composition Modular

- Multiple-choice section
- Your college can choose among three essay options:
 - Two essays provided by CLEP® but scored by your college
 - An essay section created and scored by your college
 - No essay section

Test Development Committee:

Dr. Warren Carson — University of South Carolina Upstate

Dr. Suzanne Diamond (Chair) — Youngstown State University, Ohio

Dr. April Gentry — Savannah State University, Georgia

Prof. Richard Strugala — Middlesex County Community College,
New Jersey

Submit your new CLEP College Composition policy online so we can post your information on our website:

Visit www.collegeboard.org/clepcomposition.

Inform your students by:

Updating your college catalog, your website and any relevant materials to reflect your new CLEP College Composition policy.

Inform academic advisers about your new CLEP College Composition policy. They can visit www.collegeboard.org/clepcomposition for more detailed information.

Advise students of the free downloadable study guide on the student information page.