HOW TO INVEST IN PHILIPPINE STOCK MARKET

START INVESTING THIS WEEK

STEP 0 – INVESTIGATE INVESTING

Understand first what investing in stock market is all about. Hey, it's your hard-earned money at stake here so never plunge into the market without knowing the basic do's and don'ts. However, this should be a continuing process so you can proceed to the next steps while doing this. But let me give you some quick start points here.

When a company wants to raise money for possible expansion, one option it can take is to raise the funds from people outside the company. It can do so by selling a minority part of ownership of the company to these people, whom we will call as investors. This form of ownership in a corporation is called shares, which can also be called stocks. If you buy a stock of a company, you therefore become a part-owner of it.

So how do you make sure that you make money out of investing?

Simple: Become part-owners of fantastic companies.

In other words, only buy shares or stocks of companies who are earning big money consistently! Key word: consistently.

You'll learn some tips below how to do this.

Unfortunately, you cannot buy your first stock alone. You will need what you call a stockbroker or trading participant who will place buy or sell orders on your behalf in the Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE). PSE is simply the place where people converge to buy and sell stocks.

Here comes the very first step you need to do to start investing.

STEP 1 – OPEN YOUR ONLINE TRADING ACCOUNT

A trading account provided by a broker allows you to buy and sell stocks. Fortunately, there are now online brokers available which will allow you to do all your transactions online (funding your account, buying/selling your stocks, and withdrawing your money).

Opening an online trading account is very similar to opening a normal savings account in a bank. You just need to submit accomplished forms and basic requirements (photocopy of government-issued ID's) to your chosen online broker's office.

Don't worry, this will be a one-time application only; the rest of the steps (like buying stocks and withdrawing your money) can all be done online afterwards.

COL Financial, formerly Citiseconline, is my recommended online broker for beginners. You can check this post for the step by step tutorial HOW TO OPEN YOUR STOCK TRADING ACCOUNT ONLINE IN COL FINANCIAL \(EVEN USING YOUR MOBILE PHONE\). That tutorial is well applicable to anyone – employees, self-employed, students, OFWs, retirees and even non-Filipino residents! You can either (1) apply online, OR (2) go to their office with the accomplished printed-out forms OR (3) you send all the requirements via a courier service. In all cases, you then wait for their email for the additional needed next steps which is account funding.

Another easier option for anyone (including OFWs and those in provinces) who has BDO account enrolled in BDO online banking is to try out the online stockbroker BDO Nomura. Just like COL Financial, this option allows you to open a trading account online without the hassle of going to your broker's office. That means you can buy your first stock anytime soon if you fall in this category. Click here to find out How to Open a Trading Account Online with BDO Nomura.

Once your online trading account is approved, you'll receive an email for your account details which at this point is now ready for funding.

Remember, you're buying a stock here, so that buying will certainly entail money.

While your trading account will give you the needed platform to buy a stock, you want to make sure that you have enough money to do so. You can fund with as low as 500 pesos only.

STEP 2 – FUND YOUR TRADING ACCOUNT

Funding your trading account is done by making a bank deposit or merchant payment. It works like paying for your bills through a bank. The manual approach is you go to a branch of BPI, BDO or Metrobank, etc, fill out the Merchant Payment slip with your account number (this is provided to you via email once your trading account is approved by your chosen broker) and indicate the amount you'll deposit. This deposit will be entirely transferred directly to your trading account which you can use to buy your first stock. No fees to be deducted and this becomes part of your capital to finally buy stocks.

PRO TIP: If you do online banking with your favorite bank, you can enroll your trading (broker) account as merchant and do the funding online. No more long queues in your bank's branch! Yay!

It normally takes one trading (banking) day or less for your deposit to reflect on your trading account. It can be shorter for other brokers, possibly within the day if you're within their cut-off time.

By now you have your trading account and enough funds in it. Time to buy your first stock!

STEP 3 – BUY YOUR FIRST STOCK

Yahoo! This will be the most exciting yet challenging part of your investing journey.

Let me warn you: At this point, you'll have two challenges as a beginner:

- (1) If you log-on to your trading account, you may become overwhelmed with the lots of menus and numbers you see on your screen. It's easy to be discouraged and confused not knowing what to do with all those buttons. But don't you worry, I created a simple tutorial you can follow so you make your way to buy your first stock.
- (2) Another more important problem you will have is not knowing exactly what stocks to buy. There are currently more than 200 stocks you can choose from. Which one will make you money down the road? Again, don't worry, I've got your back.

To solve your first problem, just check this tutorial >>How to Place Buy / Sell Stock Transactions << and follow the steps to buy your first stock and ignore the rest (at this point).

To solve your second problem on screening what stocks to buy, I shared simple practical tips for you in this post >> How to Choose What Stocks to Buy and Sell <<.

STEP 4 – SELL YOUR STOCKS

If you've done Step 3 above properly, you'll soon see your investment growing through time. And if you're happy with the earnings, you can go sell it.

(Hey, don't forget the risk associated with investing in stocks. Stocks prices fluctuate up and down every trading day, so don't be surprised if you see your investment declining in value. It all boils down to your strategy and time horizon how your stock investment will grow its value through time).

The steps in selling are very similar to what you did in Step 3, except that you're selling at this stage, as opposed to buying. Also take note that you can sell anytime.

STEP 5 – ENJOY YOUR PROFITS

Once you're done selling, you can now withdraw back your investments if you want to.

Withdrawing your investment means you're transferring your investment money from your trading account to your bank account so you can withdraw it using your ATM card, for example.

You can follow this easy tutorial >>How to Withdraw Funds from Your Trading Account<< how to do this.

THAT'S IT!

Personally, I make my investment account as my giant piggy bank and consider it as my long-term investment! That means I just add monthly to my investment, buy my carefully chosen stocks, and sell when I believe it's already time to sell. I don't withdraw and take it out. Instead, I use the selling proceeds to buy other cheap stocks and repeat the whole process, thus making the power of compounding work for me. 😊

You're done at this point! In case you'll want more help...

BONUS - POOLED INVESTMENT QUICK GUIDE

There are two way to start investing in stocks – direct investing and indirect investing.

Direct investing is exactly what I described above.

I call this direct investing because YOU do all the activities YOURSELF in this way.

This includes funding your account, finding which specific stocks to buy/sell (which could demand lots of time of study) and actually executing the buy and sell orders on your computer screen.

You totally don't need anyone, aside from your funded broker account, to make money since you can do all these things at the comfort of your home just with your gadget connected to the internet.

If you want to invest in, say the company that manages and operates the giant SM malls, then you can just log-in to your trading account and buy SMPH stocks (SMPH is the stock code of SM Prime Holdings) even with your smartphone. You can also always see how your money fluctuates with the movement of the market on your gadget screen.

The problem is... direct investing could be overwhelming for a beginner (as with any undertaking at the start), but it becomes very easy to do once you get the hang of it. If you are serious in actively managing your investment, direct investing could be the path for you. Since you are the direct investor on this, you also take full responsibility for the possible losses you can incur.

But there are a lot of people who have no time or interest to study about how stock prices move and really monitor their investments on a weekly (or daily) basis.

Instead, these people just wish to get better returns than what ordinary bank deposits can offer. This includes full-time employees, OFWs abroad, financially-established people or anyone who has excess money to invest on top of their normal daily needs.

They simply want to "invest their excess money hoping that after some time, they get their money back with decent returns".

That's where indirect investing comes in.

Indirect investing could be divided into two – Mutual Funds and UITF (Unit Investment Trust Fund). These two operate very similar since they are just variations of the general pooled investment fund from several investors, invested into predefined types of investments, and actively managed not by you but by a professional fund or investment manager.
